First comment: The full answer, with the rule for each of the six countries: https://imoveisportugal.us/en/us/blog/nif-portugal-from-abroad/?utm_source=linkedin&utm_medium=social&utm_campaign=w01-li-nif-first-question

Before people abroad ask about prices, they ask about a tax number.

We launch Imóveis Portugal on December 1, with six editions: Luxembourg, France, Switzerland, Brazil, the US and Israel. In Google's autocomplete for each of those six countries, "nif portugal" is among the first suggestions. It's the first document of any purchase, so it's the first question we answer.

What the official sources say:
· A foreign non-resident can get a NIF online through a legal representative, on the tax authority's e-balcão. No tax representative is needed for that step.
· Once they own property in Portugal, they have 15 days to appoint a tax representative or join the electronic notification service.
· Outside the EU and EEA, one of the two is mandatory. Inside, the representative is optional.

For lawyers, banks and advisers with clients abroad, this is usually the first step of the file, and a clear answer saves a call.

Représentant fiscal au Portugal : un client en Suisse doit en désigner un, ou passer aux notifications électroniques. Un client au Luxembourg, non.

C'est la deuxième question d'un achat depuis l'étranger, juste après le NIF. La réponse tient dans l'article 19 de la Loi générale fiscale portugaise et dans la brochure de l'administration fiscale pour les étrangers non résidents.

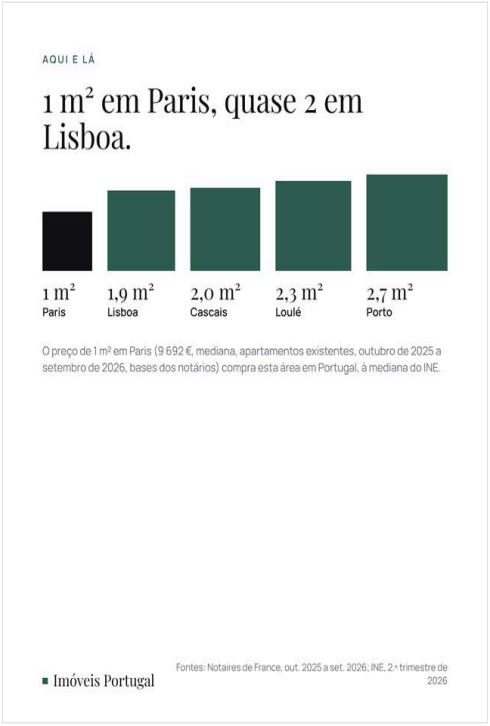

· Pour obtenir le NIF, aucun représentant fiscal n'est nécessaire : un représentant légal fait la demande en ligne.
· Une fois propriétaire, le client a 15 jours pour désigner un représentant fiscal ou adhérer aux notifications électroniques de l'administration fiscale.
· Hors UE et EEE (Suisse, Brésil, États-Unis, Israël), l'un des deux est obligatoire. Dans l'UE et l'EEE, le représentant est facultatif.

Pour un conseiller patrimonial à Genève ou une banque à Luxembourg, c'est une ligne de plus dans le dossier, avec une source officielle à citer.

Two numbers for US clients buying a home in Portugal: 15 days and $10,000.

15 days: once they own property in Portugal, a US resident has 15 days to appoint a Portuguese tax representative or join the tax authority's electronic notification service. The US is outside the EU and the EEA, so one of the two is mandatory.

$10,000: a Portuguese bank account opened for the purchase counts toward the FBAR. US persons file one when their foreign accounts together exceed $10,000 at any time during the year. It goes to FinCEN, not with the tax return.

Before both comes the NIF, Portugal's tax number. It can be requested online through a legal representative, with no tax representative needed for that step.

For wealth managers and CPAs whose clients are looking at Lisbon, Porto or the Algarve, these are the two dates and thresholds that come up first.

Un mètre carré à Genève. Plus de deux à Lisbonne.

Le prix médian d'un appartement en PPE vendu dans le canton de Genève était de 10 853 CHF le m² en 2024 (OCSTAT). Au taux de la BCE du 23 octobre 2026, cela fait 11 762 €.

Au prix médian de l'INE (logements vendus sur 12 mois, jusqu'au 2e trimestre 2026), ce montant achète :
· 2,3 m² à Lisbonne
· 2,4 m² à Cascais
· 2,8 m² à Loulé, en Algarve
· 3,2 m² à Porto
· 3,3 m² à Funchal, à Madère

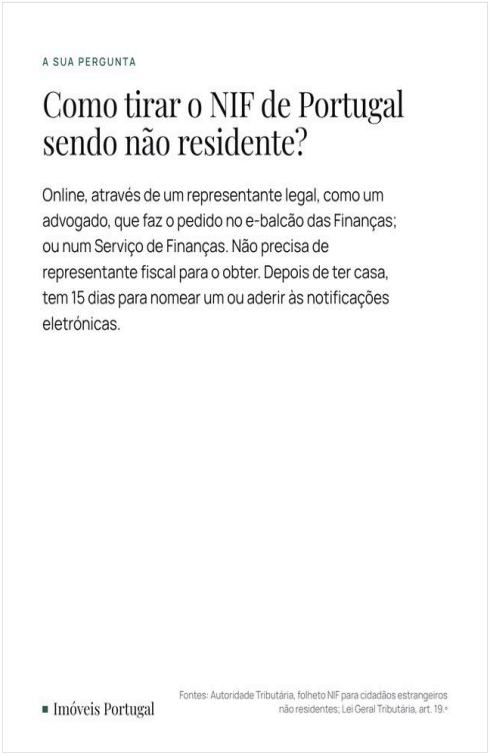

Une précision de méthode : Genève est une médiane cantonale de 2024, le Portugal une médiane communale sur 12 mois. Ce sont des ordres de grandeur, pas l'estimation d'un bien.

Pour une banque ou un gérant de fortune à Genève, c'est une comparaison simple à partager, avec ses sources.

Sources : OCSTAT, transactions immobilières 2024 ; BCE, 23/10/2026 ; INE, 2e trimestre 2026

Portugal's median price per square metre: €830 in early 2016, €2,264 in mid-2026.

That's +173% in ten years, from INE's local housing price statistics (median value per m² of family dwellings sold over the last 12 months).

In the six places we compare most often:
· Porto +234%
· Grândola, Comporta's municipality, +230%
· Cascais +206%
· Funchal +188%
· Lisbon +177%
· Loulé +165%

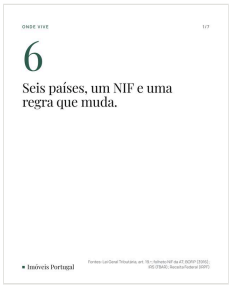

One method note: INE changed its method in Q4 2019, and the two series are joined there.

We publish these lines for every municipality on our house-prices page. If you're a developer, a bank or a journalist and want the data behind a chart, the link is in the first comment.

Two things get mixed up in most NIF threads: the legal representative who requests the number, and the tax (fiscal) representative. They're separate, and only one of them matters before you buy.

Getting the NIF. The Autoridade Tributária's leaflet for non-resident foreigners lists two routes: in person at a Serviço de Finanças, or online through a legal representative who files the request on the Portal das Finanças e-balcão. The legal representative is usually a lawyer or solicitador you've authorised. You send the documents from home; they tell you which ones your case needs. The leaflet also says a tax representative isn't needed to get the number.

Why it comes first. At Casa Pronta, the government desk that does the deed and the registration in one sitting, the document list starts with the civil and tax identification of everyone signing. So no NIF, no deed.

The tax representative comes later. Article 19 of the Lei Geral Tributária: if you live outside the EU and the EEA (US, UK, Brazil, Switzerland, Israel…), appointing a tax representative in Portugal is mandatory, unless you join the electronic notification service on the Portal das Finanças. Inside the EU or EEA it's optional. The AT leaflet puts the deadline at 15 days after you come to own property in Portugal.

If you can't fly in for the deed. A power of attorney works: signed at a Portuguese consulate, or before a notary where you live with the Hague Apostille.

Back home. A Portuguese bank account opened for the purchase counts toward the FBAR if you're a US person (foreign accounts above $10,000 combined at any point in the year). French tax residents declare every foreign account on form 3916.

On cost and timing: none of the official sources I checked gives a processing time or a fee for the online route, and each representative sets their own fee, so the representative is the one who can quote both. If you were tax resident in Portugal before, your case may differ, and that's a question for a lawyer.

Thread: How can a non-resident get a NIF number in Portugal? (to find: match an existing question before posting)
Rules: not verified: reddit.com and quora.com are blocked from the build environment; the person posting reads the community rules first

You can get it without setting foot in Portugal. The NIF (número de identificação fiscal) is the Portuguese tax number, and the tax authority gives one to non-residents as well as residents.

According to the Autoridade Tributária's leaflet for non-resident foreigners, there are two ways to request it:

1. Online, through a legal representative. Someone you authorise, usually a lawyer or solicitador, files the request on the e-balcão of the Portal das Finanças. You send them your documents from wherever you live.
2. In person, at any Serviço de Finanças (tax office), if you happen to be in Portugal.

The same leaflet makes a point that trips many people up: you don't need a tax representative to get the NIF. The tax representative is a different role and a later obligation.

That later obligation is in article 19 of the Lei Geral Tributária. Once you own property in Portugal, you have 15 days to either appoint a tax representative or join the tax authority's electronic notification service. If you live outside the EU and the EEA (the US, Brazil, Switzerland or Israel, for example), one of the two is mandatory. If you live in an EU or EEA country, the representative is optional.

Why the NIF comes first: the deed can't be signed without it. At Casa Pronta, the public desk that handles the deed and the land registration together, the list of documents begins with the civil and tax identification of everyone signing.

Depending on where you live, there's also paperwork at home:

- US persons: a Portuguese bank account counts toward the FBAR, filed when foreign accounts together exceed $10,000 at any time in the year.
- France: every foreign account goes on form 3916 each year, even an unused one.
- Brazil: a property abroad goes into the IRPF under Bens e Direitos, converted from euros to dollars and then to reais.

The official sources I checked don't state a processing time or a fee for the online route, and each representative charges their own, so the representative is the one who can quote both. For anything specific to your situation, such as having been a Portuguese tax resident before, a lawyer in Portugal is the person to ask.
